Festival Queen Contest Starts

Entries are now being accepted for the annual Popularity Contest, which is one of the highlights of the Greenbelt Festival held over the Labor Day weekend. All civic organizations and business establishments have been invited by Festival officials to enter a girl to represent them in the contest.

Contestants must be unmarried girls between the ages of 16 and 25 as of August 31. Previous first place winners are not eligible. All entries must be in by midnight, August 19, in order to provide equal publicity for all contestants.

The contestant with the largest number of votes at 11 p.m. on September 1 is crowned Queen of the Festival, receives a Queen's Trophy, rides in the Labor Day parade, and is honored at the "Dance of the Queen" held later in September. The second and third place winners are awarded Princesses' Trophies.

Votes are credited to each girl at the rate of one vote per penny. However, each penny contributed prior to 9 p.m. on August 12 will be counted as two votes. Similarly organizations which submit entries prior to that time, which must be accompanied by a $10 fee, will start off their candidate with 2000 votes rather than 1000 votes.

All funds collected in the Popularity Contest go into the Festival Youth Center fund.

Fisher, O'Loughlin Run for City Council

Two more candidates have filed nomination petitions for the forthcoming City Council election. They are Mrs. Rita Fisher, 2-H Gardenway, and Joseph O'Loughlin, 11-R Laurel Hill. They are the first candidates who are not incumbents on the present board.

Other candidates have until August 19 to file their petitions. August 19 is also the deadline for registering to vote for the council. According to Marilyn Spitz, city clerk, 73 persons have registered since July 16. They join the more than 1,100 qualified voters on the permanent registration list.

Rita Fisher

Rita Sue Fisher, a native of New York, has been a resident of Greenbelt for seven years. She resides with her husband Victor and her four daughters, Natalie, Vicki, Mindy, and Lori, at 2-H Gardenway.

An active Greenbelt citizen, she has been a staff member of the Greenbelt News Review for about six years. In the past she served for two years as a Girl Scout Leader. She has also held executive positions with the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Greenbelt Methodist Church and the Ladies Auxiliary to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad. She is also Secretary to the Greenbelt Businessmen's Association and the Greenbelt Democratic Club.

Mrs. Fisher is currently employed by the Hyattsville Telephone Answering Service which is also known as the Prince Georges Medical Bureau.

In a statement to the News Review, Mrs. Fisher commented that she is suspending many of her activities in order to concentrate on her candidacy for City Council.

(Ed. Note: O'Loughlin's biography was not available as the News Review went to press this week.)

CAMPAIGN LITERATURE ORDINANCE SPARKS VIGOROUS COUNCIL DEBATE

by Al Skolnik

Preparations for the coming city election on September 17 occupied the attention of council at its regular meeting on Monday, August 5. The actions of council included designation of Center School as the polling place, authorization of the use of three voting machines, appointment of election clerks and judge, and instructions to the city manager to put the finishing touches on an ordinance governing the distribution and publication of campaign material.

The last item generated the most discussion. Councilman Bill Phillips raised a question as to the constitutionality of the ordinance, citing a Supreme Court decision declaring unconstitutional a similar ordinance enacted by a California municipality.

The ordinance, as revised by the city manager, leaves out any reference to the distribution of false information, but simply requires the identification of the person or organization responsible for publishing or distributing campaign literature in connection with a city council election or referendum. Penalties of not more than $100 or not more than 30 days imprisonment are provided.

Unconstitutional?

Bernie Bordenet, taking up where Phillips left off, pulled out the text of the Supreme Court decision which, in effect, said that it was unconstitutional and an infringement of free speech to forbid the distribution of anonymous handbills or leaflets. The decision observed in a historical footnote that the Federalist papers were written under pseudonyms and might have run afoul of such an ordinance.

Howard Chasanow noted, however, that the Supreme Court decision made a distinction between ordinances directed at the general distribution of printed material and ordinances directed at regulating specific election practices, which apparently are constitutional. The decision, furthermore, took cognizance of the fact that 36 States, including Maryland, have enacted Corrupt Practices Acts, which apparently have not been challenged successfully.

City manager James K. Giese stated that the language of the proposed ordinance was taken directly from the Maryland Corrupt Practices Act.

Purpose

Bordenet then asked how the violators of the law would be discovered since they were circulating unsigned material.

In reply, councilman Ben Goldfaden stated that the objective of the ordinance was to put everyone on notice that the city frowned upon the practice of distributing anonymous campaign material. The ordinance, he admitted, may not be perfect, but it would serve as a guide and warning and perhaps dissuade persons from engaging in such practices. He said, "If a leaflet is distributed on my doorstep, I want to know who prepared it." His remarks were made more pointed by Rita Fisher, recently-announced candidate for council, who declared, "If I am going to be slandered, I want to know by whom."

Bordenet then pointed out that the ordinance would not cover all situations, such as slander through telephone calls or by word of mouth. Moreover, he wanted to know why editorials in newspapers should not also be signed. Maybe Francis White replied that editorials are identified as the product of the newspaper (the masthead of most newspapers contains the names of those persons responsible for editorial policy).

During the discussion, a technical question was raised as to how

Army Band To Give Concert

The public is invited to attend a free concert to be given on the steps of the United States Capitol at 8 p.m. Friday, August 9, by the U. S. Army Band under the direction of Captain Gilbert Mitchell. Selections from Rodgers' "The Sound of Music" will be featured. Other highlights will include a trombone solo and a clarinet solo, several marches, and various selections from popular classics.

campaign material should be identified to meet the requirements of the proposed ordinance. The ordinance as drafted called for the names of all the officers of the committee or organization publishing or distributing the material. The council thought the name of one officer or one person associated with the committee would suffice. It was also asked whether the identification "by authority of the candidates" would meet the requirements.

City manager Giese was directed to prepare clarifying language so that the council could take action at its next meeting on August 19.

Election officials

The council decided to expand the number of election clerks from 5 to 7. Appointed were Evelyn Barcus, Marion Moraz, Ada Snyder, Belva Weisel, Shirley Clute, and Margaret A. Feeney. A seventh clerk will be appointed later. Mae Zoellner was appointed judge of election. Rate of pay was determined as $30 for the judge and $25 for the clerks.

Personnel Plan

The council adopted for first reading an ordinance establishing a personnel system for the city. This ordinance consolidates and revises all the personnel regulations of the city. The ordinance was first drafted by the Maryland Technical Advisory Service and reviewed and revised extensively by the City Manager, the Personnel Board, and the city council. An ad hoc committee consisting of Bill Hoff, Bordenet, and Al Herling also reviewed the document.

The ordinance, consisting of 20 sections, defines the role of the city manager, the city council, the Employee Relations Board, and the Personnel Advisory Board in matters of personnel administration and policy. It also defines the manner and kinds of appointments to city service, holidays, annual leave, sick leave, and other fringe benefits.

The ordinance further defines causes for disciplinary action and procedures for establishing and maintaining a compensation plan and a position classification plan for the city.

Planning Board

The council appointed Cyril Kovalchik, 4-F Hillside, to the vacancy on the Advisory Planning Board caused by the death of Charles M. Cormack. His term will run to October 1965. Kovalchik is an elementary school principal and has had planning experience in connection with school and county matters. He was nominated by Goldfaden and there were no other nominations.

Mayor White noted that another vacancy on the APB would be created by the resignation of Bernard Sisco. He put into nomination Mrs. Velma Chapman, 35 Ridge, and asked the council to submit other nominations by the next meeting. Mrs. Chapman has been active in GHI committees.

Boxwood

The council accepted an agreement with Charles Bresler, developer of Boxwood Village, for the conveyance of 9 acres in fee simple to the city. This strip of land lies between Boxwood and Lakewood subdivisions. The council asked that the agreement with Bresler regarding the pavement of Ridge road be drawn up and signed before the city recommends approval of Bresler's zoning request to the county commissioners.

Swimming Pool

The council postponed final action on the ordinance providing for a swimming pool reconstruction bond issue in order to get the views of the Recreation Advisory Board. A tentative meeting of council to consider final passage was scheduled for next Monday.

Mrs. Greenbelt at Home

by Vivian Greenbaum

I recently returned home from a meeting to find, locked out and waiting for me on the doorstep, two cats and a husband. It had been raining, and all three were equally wet and equally irritated. However, they were all mine so I had to let them in.

The cats immediately repaired to the kitchen for a snack of Crunchies to fortify themselves for their nocturnal prowling. Russ divested himself of his wet shirt in a manner that suggested that somehow I was responsible for the whole thing. Then he said that he must have misplaced his key and asked for mine so he could have duplicates made. I reluctantly handed it over and tried to escape upstairs to bed before he noticed anything unusual about it. Ordinarily I welcome the diversion of a few rounds in the ring with Russ, but I had had a busy day and wasn't in my best form. However, before my foot left the first step, his voice stopped me.

"This," he said, "is a car key."

"Yes," I replied.

"You cannot open the front door with the car key."

"Yes, I can. I use it right-side-up for the car and upside-down for the house."

"Don't be ridiculous. Here, let me see your key-ring . . . Good heavens, what do you need all these keys for?"

"They make me feel important. And you're lucky at that — some women need a mink coat to make them feel important."

He held a key up close to his eyes and stared at it suspiciously.

"This looks like the key to that trunk I had to break the lock off ten years ago because we couldn't find the key to it. And this one I do recognize—it belonged to the Studebaker we traded in in 1955. You seem to have every key out of our past here and not one to the front door."

An idea seemed to occur to him because he dashed into the kitchen and pulled out a drawer. I followed him and watched him search it and then lift up the lining paper to reveal a whole nest of keys.

"So that's where the sardine keys went," I exclaimed happily. "I looked all over for them."

"Oh, did you miss them?" asked Russ. "Why didn't you use the car key for the sardines?"

I ignored this open invitation because lying in his palm were four shining, new house keys. Exultantly he marched to the front door and tried them, one by one. None of them fit.

"Why should we have house keys that don't belong to us," he moaned. "Which door do they fit?"

I could have told him, but I wasn't going to. It had just occurred to me that those keys belong to our next-door neighbors.

Whenever they go away we feed their cat, and they leave a key with us so we can get in. And whenever we go away they feed our cats for which we leave a key with them, so . . .

I made good my escape at that point. I left Russ muttering to himself as he feverishly pulled out drawers and emptied their contents on the floor.

Someday, when I'm really in tip-top shape, I think I'll tell him that you can open sardine cans with a car key. I know, because I've done it many times.

The Police Blotter

Last Friday morning, a citizen of Woodland Way reported to police that his auto had been stolen sometime during the night. The vehicle was described as a 1962 Sunliner Ford Convertible, red with a white top, Maryland registration #ES4983. County and State police are assisting in the search.

Another vehicle was reported stolen from Greenbelt on Tuesday. A resident in the Springhill Lake apartments reported as missing, his 1961 Chevrolet Impala. He described it as a four door hard-top, blue, bearing North Carolina registration #BW5440.

On Friday evening, a stolen vehicle was recovered in Greenbelt and returned to its owner, a resident of Tuxedo, Md. Another stolen vehicle was recovered in Greenbelt on Sunday and returned to its Cottage City owner.

Last Wednesday, a fifteen year old youth was apprehended by the manager of a store at the Beltway Plaza and charged with shoplifting.

A citizen on Crescent complained to police last Friday night that he had apprehended several youngsters who were stealing refreshments from his parked truck. The youths were taken to the police office and their parents notified. An investigation into the affair is still being conducted.

More bicycles have been reported stolen or missing this past week. On Thursday a complaint was received that a black, 20 inch, double bar, red bike was missing. A missing bike from in front of the pool was reported Monday. It was described as red and white, front fender only, coaster brakes and a light. A long, paper-boy type white wagon was also reported missing last week.

Two bicycles were found and turned in to the police office last week and will be returned to their owners upon proper identification. One other bike was found but returned to its owner.

Two juveniles were picked up by police on Sunday morning when they were caught carrying loaded BB guns in the Center. The guns were confiscated and the youths, residents of Carrollton, were released to their parents.

Shortly after 5 p.m. on Monday, a report was received that a citizen had found an unexploded 75 mm shell which had been dug up in a neighbor's yard. Chief O'Brien requested the assistance of a Military Ordinance Explosive Demolition team and the shell was removed by a team from Fort McNair.

STREET RENAMING

To the Editor:

Several weeks ago the News Review wrote of a proposed change in the name of a street, in a new development being planned in Greenbelt. At that time, this development was the center of a zoning controversy, and the proposed new name was that of a serving county commissioner, a well respected citizen of Greenbelt. I would like here to cast my vote against such a name switch. Assuming all parties act in good faith, it is still almost inevitable that such a renaming will cause speculations and rumors. In a city such as ours, hearsay has a persistence matched by few documented facts, and the new name will serve it as a constant reminder. If indeed we wish to honor a deserving person, let this be done in a manner free from any controversy.

There is, however, one renaming which, it seems, would be very timely. As announced in the News Review (June 27, 1963), the Goddard Space Flight Center is now being incorporated in the city of Greenbelt. It would be altogether fitting and proper to mark this event by naming one of the city's streets after the pioneer of the space age whose name the center bears. Almost singlehandedly, Dr. Goddard had developed and tested in the period between the two world wars, those principles of rocket flight which now help in putting Americans in orbit and on the moon and in making the name Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Maryland familiar to scientists all over the world.

The road leading to the Space Flight Center, Glenn Dale road, is presently being converted into a 4-lane divided highway. When this work is finished, let it be rededicated to honor the name of Robert H. Goddard.

Our Neighbors

by Elaine Skolnik

It's a boy for Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Benfield, 15-K Laurel. Daryl Ricky was born July 5 weighing 9 lbs. 6 oz. He has a sister, Darlene.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Holby, 57-D Ridge, announce the birth of a son. Carl Edward made his entry July 21 weighing 7 lbs. 14 oz. He joins a brother, Neil.

Congratulations to Walter Penney, 127 Northway, who answered July's Hot Shoppes "Table Talk" transposer problem correctly with this formula - 2 x 14 x 307 equals 8596. I'm still trying to unscramble the "August Thinker".

Glad to hear that the injuries sustained by the Geller family, 117 Northway, were minor. The Gellers were headed for Bluestone State Park in West Virginia when a piece of equipment carried by a truck traveling in the opposite direction extended over the lane and smashed into the windshield.

Capital Plaza Center Opens

The four-day grand opening of the Capital Plaza Shopping Center started Wednesday, August 7, and will continue through Saturday, August 10. Free balloon rides in the original balloon used in the motion picture "Around The World in 80 Days" will be a featured attraction during the four days. On Saturday, the final day of the opening, a free all-expense-paid 33-day trip around the world will be given away.

This mall-type shopping plaza is just off Baltimore - Washington Parkway at Annapolis Road (Route 450), in the Landover Hills area near Bladensburg. Over 37 stores, including Montgomery Ward, are now open. The center will eventually contain more than 45 stores, as well as a 200-room luxury motel on which construction will soon be started.

Damascus Camp Meeting

The Damascus Interdenominational Camp Meeting will be held this year from August 8 - 18 at the campsite 2 miles north of Damascus, Md. on State Highway 122.

Facilities include cabins for adults and their children under 12, Boys' and girls' dormitories for young people 12-21 years of age, Young People's Tabernacle, Beall Memorial Tabernacle, dining hall (good food), book store, refreshment stand and recreation areas. of their car. Helen said that she was certainly glad that she had taken the first aid course offered in Greenbelt last year. Seat belts also kept injuries at a minimum.

The Greenbelt Swimming Team has swelled its ranks to over 70 members. More youngsters are encouraged to join - it's a great sport! Tommy Hieber is the team's swim coach.

Our deepest sympathy to the family of Mr. Francis Johnson, Sr., 8-U Laurel. Johnson passed away last week. His daughter, Mrs. Snadecor, lives at 11-G Hillside.

The City Manager may hold any office or combination of offices.

(b) The Council may change or abolish any office or department established by ordinance and may prescribe, distribute, or discontinue the functions and duties of offices and departments so established. Additional functions and duties may be assigned by ordinance to offices and departments established by this charter but no function or duty assigned by this charter to a specific office or department shall be discontinued or assigned to any other office or department by ordinance. (The Council shall classify all persons employed by the city and establish a schedule of uniform compensation rates for like services with maxima and minima for each class of positions. Subject to such schedule, the City Manager shall fix the compensation of all such employees on the basis of efficiency and seniority.)
